The Canadian Teachers' Federation is proud to be one of the voices at the 54th session of the United Nations Commission on the Status of Women, March 1-12, 2010. At that time, governments around the world – including Canada – will come under scrutiny by the international community regarding their progress and actions since signing on to the 1995 Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action for women.

As part of this review process, the Canadian Teachers' Federation joins the Canadian Labour Congress, the Public Service Alliance of Canada and the Feminist Alliance for International Action in the production and release of a "true report" on the Canadian government's performance in moving women's issues and rights since 1995.
