

THE CANADIAN FORUM ON PUBLIC EDUCATION
SAFE AND CARING SCHOOLS

JULY 9-10, 2018
EDMONTON, ALBERTA

We recognize the contributions of the First Nations, Métis and Inuit peoples of Canada. In honour of reconciliation in education, we acknowledge and give gratitude to the Indigenous peoples whose lands we are on today.

As a bilingual organization, the Canadian Teachers' Federation believes all participants should feel free to express themselves in English and French. That is why every effort will be made to have presentations available in both official languages at the Canadian Forum on Public Education.

In addition, identified bilingual staff will be more than happy to help in the interpretation during plenary and breakout sessions. We also hope to count on the support of bilingual staff from Member organizations.

Thanks in advance to everyone for their support.

IMPORTANT

In response to health concerns, the Canadian Teachers' Federation has developed a scent-free policy. Scented products such as hair spray, perfume, and deodorant can trigger reactions such as respiratory distress and headaches. We thank you in advance for not wearing these products at the Forum.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Welcome,

The Canadian Teachers' Federation (CTF) is excited to be hosting the Canadian Forum on Public Education once again. This event has become a key gathering for those with a keen interest in publicly funded public education.

In my first year as the CTF President, I have been privileged to have numerous conversations with colleagues from across the country about many issues affecting teachers and our students. Among other issues, I have repeatedly heard teachers and teacher leaders voice concern about increasing violence in our schools. I believe the theme of this year's Forum, "Safe and Caring Schools", is both warranted and timely.

Through this Forum, we hope participants will deepen their understandings of the complexities of today's classrooms while exploring what can be done to further support teachers, education workers, and students to ensure Canadian schools are the safest and most caring environments for learning possible. We hope to engage participants and encourage discourse regarding issues that need to be addressed as we continually strive for safe and caring schools for all. The conversations and ensuing actions are vital.

Once again, I welcome you to the 2018 Canadian Forum on Public Education. Being here makes you part of the ongoing story of education in Canada and indeed part of the solution, supporting students and teachers in Canada. I do hope you will find this Forum informative and thought provoking, and I hope it will encourage and support you to continue participating in efforts to ensure schools are safe and caring schools for all students and teachers.

Thank you for being here!

	Decolonization of Student-Teacher Discourse in Indigenous Communities <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Jay McKechnie, NTA The history of colonialism is what binds Indigenous and non-Indigenous Canadians. As a non-Inuit educator living in an isolated Inuit community, I understand that I am a representing agent of colonization. This workshop will use the Nunavut education system as a site to examine the teacher-student colonial confrontation as an opportunity to decolonize discourse, and to discuss how teachers must act to facilitate dialogue, as a means of teaching for democracy.	Maligne
	What Does Caring Look Like and Whose Responsibility Is It? <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Trish Hastings and Ellen Whiteman, STF The STF is taking a multifaceted approach to advocating for, promoting and supporting safe and caring schools. Framing the discussion on two recent incidents, Federation staff will discuss first, a crisis response protocol, developed to ensure a consistent and timely support for teachers within their communities when dealing with critical incidents. Secondly, staff will share lessons learned from a recent situation in which a teacher, confronted by a potentially violent student, exercised professional judgement and yet was held responsible and disciplined by the employing school division. Thus the question, what does the act of 'caring' look like in schools today?	Morraine
12:30 – 13:30	Lunch	Robson
13:30 – 15:00	Workshops
	Safer Schools for All: Addressing Violence Against Teachers <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Peter MacDonald, OECTA In 2017, OECTA partnered with Pollara Strategic Insights to conduct a comprehensive survey of members regarding violence and harassment against teachers. The survey results clearly showed the scope and scale of the problem, including the increasing rate of incidence and severity. This workshop will detail OECTA's research and advocacy on this issue. We will discuss our rationale for conducting the survey, and go over some of the data highlights. We will look at how the survey data informed our recommendations to government, and how these recommendations have been turned into tangible action. There will also be an opportunity to discuss challenges and best practices elsewhere in Canada.	Logan

	Everyday Mental Health at School <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Nancy Baldree and Adam Peer, ETFO • Dr. Kathy Short, Director, School Mental Health ASSIST Student mental health and well-being is a concern from coast to coast. Join us to learn about a K – Grade 8 “Everyday Classroom Mental Health” resource, co-developed by ETFO members and School Mental Health ASSIST. Opportunities will be provided for participants to learn more about the professional collaboration experienced in the creation of the resource, and how the resource can be used. This online resource is designed to enhance student mental health and well-being in the classroom. Using pro-active, evidence-based strategies creates an emotionally safe classroom for students and educators.	Amethyst
	Promoting Healthy Youth Relationships: Educating Against Gender-Based Violence <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Trevana Spilchen, BCTF This workshop will help develop an awareness of healthy and unhealthy youth relationships and gender-based violence. It will increase our understanding of the impact of dating and sexualized violence on youth. Through the exploration of lessons and strategies to address these issues in the classroom, the workshop will enhance the capacity of schools and educators to encourage healthy youth relationships. A series of lesson plans and comprehensive resources will be provided for use in the classroom.	Maligne
	Safe and Caring Schools and Communities, Alberta School Audits <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Amber Hester and Leslie Ronaldson, The Society for Safe and Caring Schools & Communities, in partnership with the ATA This tool is a process that includes surveys and interviews that are conducted at the school level with students, staff and parents. The information is then compiled into a report that is shared with schools so they can use it to celebrate what is working well and use data to focus on areas for growth or improvement. This session will provide the foundation and explain the “why” behind the creation of this audit tool and outline the journey Safe and Caring Schools & Communities has taken to create a tool to support schools in measuring their growth in an area where data is not readily available.	Morraine

Sixties Scoop <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Brian Coleman, BCTF This workshop invites educators to open their hearts and minds to understanding the colonial impact of Canada’s history on Indigenous families and their children. Educators will be challenged to unlearn the history taught to them and relearn how to value the lives of Indigenous peoples. Educators will follow the lead of Indigenous educators who may be directly connected to the lived experience of the generations of “stolen children.”	Morraine
Creating Equitable and Inclusive Schools <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Shanee Prasad, BCTF, and Kalpana Makan and Alice Te, ETFO How do we support educators to better understand their student populations and the communities they come from? What resources are available to foster inclusiveness in teaching and learning classroom practices? This workshop will provide participants with strategies to help contribute to more inclusive environments. Participants will be introduced to a number of barriers to inclusion based on race, gender identity, sexual orientation, class, and physical ability. We will explore resources available on the BCTF Equity and Inclusion webpages and ETFO Building a Just Society webpages to address these barriers.	Logan
Poverty as a Classroom Issue <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Annie Ohana, BCTF This workshop helps teachers to develop an awareness of the issue of poverty and its implications for our students. It will provide challenges for teachers on the assumptions we make about children living in poverty and provide strategies for teachers on how to support children who may be experiencing discrimination at school because of their socio-economic status.	Rundle
Creating a Gender Inclusive School Culture <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Nichelle Penney, BCTF This workshop focuses on how to be an ally and support LGBTQ+ youth within schools. Educators will develop an understanding of sexuality and gender as spectrums and will explore essential terminology and pronouns. It will increase understanding of the impact of homophobia and transphobia on youth and look at strategies and best practices to address these to ensure they are providing a safe and caring classroom environment for all learners. The importance of GSAs and LGBTQ+ policies will be shared. This workshop is highly recommended for educators wanting to create an inclusive school culture so that all students feel safe and included.	Maligne

12:45 – 14:15	Keynote: Inclusive Education as Student-Centred Practice <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Dr. Leyton Schnellert, Assistant Professor, Faculty of Education, University of British Columbia (Okanagan) As public educators we are committed to equity, diversity and plurality. Yet our work is often stymied by historical, deeply colonial structures and practices that we have inherited and permeate our educational systems. My hope for the forum is to help attendees mindfully consider theory- and research-based pedagogies that are student-centered and diversity-positive. Questions I’ve been exploring include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • How can we draw from the diverse funds of knowledge that our students, families and communities offer to deepen and personalize student learning? • How can 21st century learning and inclusive practice braid together in powerful ways? • How can we develop self-regulating learners in our schools?
